

Salt Lake Center control over Bozeman, MT

The airspace control around the Bozeman Airport has changed. Salt Lake Center representatives Troy Decker and Matt Csicsery will be speaking on the new services available. Some of the new features include flight following at lower altitudes along with vectors for the instrument approaches

Directions: The meeting will be in the Old Terminal Building at the base of the Control Tower on Bozeman, airport.

A message from the National FAASTeam Manager

Over 136,600 pilots earned WINGS credits last year. Will you, this year?
